Art Unit: 1773

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-39 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hettich et al. (U.S. Patent 4,769,290) in view of Austin (U.S. Patent 5,332,618).

Hettich et al. disclose high efficiency reflectors and methods for making them. The reflector comprises a transparent substrate such as glass or polymeric materials (claim 15), coatings of high refractive index and low refractive index. Hettich et al. disclose predetermined wave length of light reflect and predetermined wave length of light transmit (Example and col 1, line 39 to col. 2, line 45). The materials for forming high refractive index layer are tantalum oxide, titanium oxide and hafnium oxide, and for forming low refractive index layer is silicon dioxide (claims 3 and 4). Hettich et al's method for coating is low pressure method since it is done under vacuum. Hettich et al. fail to disclose curved substrate, non-planar substrate, complex shaped substrate, sputtering process and chemical vapor deposition method.

Austin discloses antireflection layer system which are similar to Hettich et al's system. Austin discloses sunglasses, corrective spectacles etc. (col. 1 lines 5-10, and 50-54) coated with alternating layers of high refractive index layer and low refractive index layer. Austin also discloses reflection of incident light higher at the blue end spectrum than at red end spectrum, which will impart a pronounced purple color to the reflected light (col. 7, lines 60 to col. 8 line 2). Austin also discloses method of coating which includes chemical vapor deposition method, sputtering method, physical vapor deposition method, ion beam deposition, plasma assisted chemical deposition etc. (col. 9, lines 23-33). The sunglasses and/or corrective spectacles are deemed to be transparent non-planar substrate, curved substrate and complex shaped substrate. Sunglasses are considered as an ornament.

Therefore it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time this invention made to utilize disclosure of Austin in the invention of Hettich et al. to coat a transparent substrate to reflect pre determined wavelength of light and transmit other light.

No claims are allowed.
